At $19,000 to enter, and another $150,000 to build the boat, it takes every ounce of crazy determination to row non-stop from the Canary Islands to Barbados. Those who cross the finish line first get a trophy, but if a rower abandons the race en route, he is required to burn his boat. John Zeigler and Tom Mailhot, the only US team in the race -- and at 51 and 41, among the oldest competitors -- enter the race with high hopes of winning. But their grueling journey was underestimated, and their quest offered one major obstacle after another. With a camera in nearly every boat, director Luke Wolbach pieces together the story of the race -- tragedies and triumphs alike -- and assembles a portrait of perseverance under the most extreme circumstances.

Unforgivable Blackness: The Rise and Fall of Jack Johnson #101 (Documentary, 2 hours)

Episode one follows Jack Johnson's remarkable journey from his humble beginnings in Galveston, Texas, as the son of former slaves, to his entry into the brutal world of professional boxing, where, in turn-of-the-century Jim Crow America, the heavyweight champion was an exclusively "white" title. Johnson lived his life out loud, wearing fancy clothes, driving fast cars and openly flaunting the conventions of the time by dating and then marrying white women. Despite the odds, Johnson was able to batter his way up through the professional ranks, and in 1908 he became the first African American to earn the title Heavyweight Champion of the World. Johnson's victory set in motion a worldwide search for a "white hope" to restore the title to whites. On July 4, 1910, in Reno, Nevada, ex-champion Jim Jeffries, the new "Great White Hope," came out of retirement to challenge Johnson. Johnson easily won the contest, billed as the Battle of the Century, despite a hostile crowd and a steady stream of racial epithets hurled from Jeffries' corner. Johnson's victory provoked race riots all around the country, but his troubles were only just beginning.

Airdate: 8/23/2010 @ 10:00 pm on KCTS 9 and KYVE

Unforgivable Blackness: The Rise and Fall of Jack Johnson #102 (Documentary, 2 hours)

By the end of 1910, Jack Johnson was on top of the world, the undisputed Heavyweight Champion of the World, the most famous - and notorious - African American on earth. But forces were gathering in America to stop him. When no one could be found to beat the champion in the ring, the U.S. government set out to destroy him in the courts, using his sometimes-troubled relationships with white women as the excuse to prosecute him. Unfairly charged with violating the Mann Act, a progressive-era piece of legislation designed to stop commercialized vice - not relationships between consenting adults - Jack Johnson was convicted and sentenced to jail. Skipping bail, Johnson fled to Europe, where he remained a fugitive for many years. In 1915 in Havana, Cuba, he defended his title in a still-controversial fight against Jess Willard, a fight that went on for 26 rounds in 105-degree heat. Determined to live his life regardless of the confines imposed by his color, Jack Johnson emerged as a central figure in America's ongoing struggle to deal with the question of race.

1955 World Series: 7 Days of Fall (Documentary, 48 minutes)

Based upon the poem entitled "1955", by James T. Crawford, about the 1955 Brooklyn Dodger/New York Yankee World Series. In unprecedented style, the presentation uniquely blends the normal documentary elements of archival film footage, still images, narration, player and fan interviews, period music, and recital of the poem to recount this timeless story 50 years later. It's a program about dedication, teamwork, belief in one self and commitment to achievement against all odds; the story of the Brooklyn Dodger's only World Championship after 65 years of futility, and of the team's unique connection with the community that so closely identified with it. '1955' is more than a sports story, but a time capsule of a period in American history like no other. Or as, the documentary's epilogue states: To believe was to achieve ... back in 1955".

Winning five Pacific Coast League Pennants over 27 years, the Rainiers sparked the city's passion for the nation's pastime. From the windows and porches of neighborhood homes, the familiar sound of Leo Lassen's radio broadcast filled the summer air. Local high school boys like Fred Hutchinson, Edo Vanni and Dewey Soriano became heroes on the diamond. With their hard-fought, gritty style of play, the Rainiers packed the bleachers at Sick's Seattle Stadium, breaking league attendance records year after year. Over 1,000 rare photographs, newly discovered film footage, and dozens of interviews with those who played and those who cheered, bring to life the colorful story of the Seattle Rainiers in this compelling 75-minute documentary.

Fred Hutchinson's 19th win on his 19th birthday with fans lining the outfield wall! Bob Boyd and Artie Wilson's battle for the 1952 batting title that came down to the last game of the season!...and many more.
